PM follows Obama to Copenhagen

POLITICS Prime Minister Stephen Harper changed course and will attend a United Nations conference next month with some 65 other world leaders, despite asserting no global deal on climate change is imminently achievable.

Earlier this month, Danish Prime Minister Lars Lokke Rasmussen formally invited 191 government leaders and heads of state to Denmark to push along the negotiations for a successor treaty to the Kyoto Protocol.

But the entreaties were rebuffed by Harper — at least until Washington announced Wednesday U.S. President Barack Obama would be stopping in on the conference next month.

Within 24 hours, Harper spokesman Dimitri Soudas announced the prime minister had decided to attend.

Reporter leaves Somalia

Amanda Lindhout receiving care in Kenyan capital

Two journalists freed after 15 months in captivity in Somalia have been receiving medical care in neighbouring Kenya, Canada's ambassador said.

Canadian Amanda Lindhout and Australian Nigel Brennan flew out of the Somali capital, Mogadishu, in a chartered plane early Thursday. Later in the day, Lindhout and Brennan arrived in the Kenyan capital, Nairobi, and were taken to hospital.

"They are receiving the best possible care they can," Ross Hynes, Canada's ambassador to Kenya, told The Associated Press. He declined to give more details. Brennan is reported to have said he was pistol whipped and locked in chains for months during the time he was held hostage.

"Ms. Lindhout has been through an extremely difficult time. We are thankful that she will soon be reunited with her family and friends."
Prime Minister Stephen Harper

Prime Minister Stephen Harper welcomed Lindhout's release.

"We are ensuring that she receives all available consular support and assistance following her ordeal," Harper said in a statement Thursday. "Ms. Lindhout has been through an extremely difficult time. We are thankful that she will soon be reunited with her family and friends."

He said the Canadian government was not involved in ransom negotiations and urged Canadians not to travel to Somalia.

Before leaving Mogadishu, Lindhout and Brennan met with Somalia's Prime Minister Omar Abdirashid Ali Sharmarke, who said the journalists had been held in a part of Mogadishu controlled by Islamic insurgents.

"As you were suffering in a part of the capital controlled by the insurgents, we were worried about you in our part of the capital," Sharmarke said in remarks aired on the state-owned Radio Mogadishu.

"We could do nothing but negotiate. Your safety was important."

At that meeting, Lindhout was wearing a brown head-to-toe abaya and Brennan had grown a long beard. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Expanded Pickton appeal granted

PROCESS The Supreme Court of Canada will allow serial killer Robert Pickton to broaden his grounds for appeal on six murder convictions.

The high court formally said Thursday it will hear the appeal and will allow arguments on issues that go beyond the grounds which were the subject of a dissent at the appeal court level.

"Today's ruling is to give me the right to expand the grounds of appeal that I am going to be arguing in the spring," said Pickton's lawyer, Gil McKinnon.

"It's an expansion of the scope of the appeal and it permits the Supreme Court of Canada to deal with all of the issues that divided the B.C. Court of Appeal and not just the issues that the dissenting judgment was based on."

If Pickton's appeal is successful, he could win a new trial.

As usual, the court made no comment on its ruling.

Pickton was sentenced to life in prison with no parole for at least 25 years after a sensational trial in 2007 convicted him on six counts of second-degree murder. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Man charged in Wednesday bank robbery

WEST END Police have charged a 34-year-old man following a robbery at a west-end bank Wednesday.

At 12:10 p.m., a lone male entered the TD Canada Trust in the 3600 block of Strandherd Drive, produced a note and demanded cash. There were no injuries.

As a result of information received, police went to the Ottawa Bus Central Station and arrested a 34-year-old male. An undisclosed amount of money was recovered.

The suspect faces charges of robbery, breach of recognizance and two counts of breach of probation. John Allan Kennedy appeared in court Thursday.

School drug program gets $100K

A program that offers counselling and support to local high school students with addiction and substance abuse problems got a helping hand Thursday.

The Frank Cowan Foundation contributed $100,000 to Project s.t.e.p., a school-based education and prevention program, allowing them to expand their work.

A community initiative supported by United Way Ottawa, Project s.t.e.p. includes an education program that all students are able to access, in addition to a program that offers addiction counselling, said Peggy Austen, senior director of community services at United Way Ottawa. "They get the help they need right in school."

The program has been running for several years, and "we're starting to see the difference," Austen said. Eighty per cent of young people in the intervention program stayed in school, she said.

Austen said about 9,000 students in Ottawa have significant substance abuse issues. The goal is to get the program running in all 55 high schools in four school boards, said Austen.

Knife coming out on city's draft budget

Task not to cut services: Coun.

There is no way anyone is going to approve a 9.6 per cent hike in the city's property tax rate, insist members of the city's finance committee, who are meeting to discuss the city's draft budget Friday.

Chair of the transportation committee Coun. Maria McRae said councillors and city staff are looking for more areas to trim from their departmental budgets in order to get closer to the proposed increase of 3.9 per cent.

Despite a draft transportation budget that remained virtually the same as last year, McRae said she thinks they could find almost $300,000 in savings, but it's going to be very tight.

"It's a question now of how much closer to the bone can we get, because we know we're getting close," said McRae.

The largest proposed increase came from the transit budget, which is estimated to increase by 16 per cent.

Chair of the transit committee Bay Ward Coun. Alex Cullen said that included an arbitration award from the transit strike, which, when removed from the total, would leave the increase at eight per cent.

"What I'm hoping the committee won't do is cut bus service," said Cullen. "It wouldn't make sense to increase fares and cut service at the same time."

Chair of the city's corporate services committee Cumberland Ward Coun. Rob Jellett said the challenge will be to reduce the increase while not cutting services.

If a department is asking for a five per cent increase, maybe they can make things work with just three per cent more, he said.

"That's a much more rational approach than to go through and say we're going to close libraries and fire stations, because we're not going to do any of that," he said. "That would be crazy."

Time to nominate those accomplished women in business community

Through Monday, area residents can nominate women in Ottawa's business community for Ottawa's Women's Business Network's Businesswoman of the Year Awards.

The awards, which showcase the accomplishments of women who live, work and have an active role in a business in the National Capital Region, recognize women in three categories, including Professional Businesswoman of the Year; Entrepreneur Businesswoman of the Year and Corporate Businesswoman of the Year.

According to the Statistics Canada census, women's entrepreneurship has increased over 200 per cent in the past two decades, compared with a 38 per cent increase for men.

Nomination forms and details are available online at www.womensbusinessnetwork.ca. Finalists will be announced the week of Feb. 1.

Firefighters' group wants quick flu shots

TIM WIECLAWSKI
tim.wieclawski@metronews.ca

Since more than half the calls firefighters respond to are medical calls, the International Association of Fire Fighters wants better protection during flu pandemics.

In the event of another pandemic, firefighters should be on the first tier of the vaccination priority list, said Jim Lee, assistant to the general president for Canadian operations with the IAFF.

"The vast majority of our calls are medical-related calls," said Lee, a 30-year firefighter based in Ottawa. "We should be treated like health-care workers because of that."

Lee said they were also concerned that in some areas, the protective masks offered to firefighters are not as effective as the P100 masks that firefighters should be using.

"They give us very, very good equipment to fight fires. Why don't they give us the best possible protection when we're dealing with medical calls?" said Lee.

Acting western chief Bob Foster hasn't heard a lot of concern from Ottawa firefighters.

"In terms of what our job exposes us to, I imagine a cashier at Loblaws would have as much or even more exposure than we would," he said. "We go on a lot of medical calls and we do come into very close contact with a lot of people, no question, but I haven't heard of a lot of firefighters who are worried about it."

"We should be treated like health-care workers."
Jim Lee, IAFF in Canada

Foster said the H1N1 vaccination clinics were set up at fire stations shortly after the first priority clinics opened around the city.

National Arts Centre artistic director Peter Hinton, pictured here in a rehearsal studio Thursday, has formed an English theatre company with artists from across the country.

Arts Centre once again truly National

tracey.tong@metronews.ca

ART For the first time in a quarter of a century, the National Arts Centre is changing the face of theatre.

The NAC has formed an English Theatre company made up of 18 artists — directors, playwrights, designers and performers — from across the country.

"The artists that we have, we've brought from all over Canada," said English Theatre artistic director Peter Hinton, who introduced the company Thursday. "It's our hope that bringing the diversity of the Canadian experience together here uniquely informs the way we do our plays."

Since his appointment to the National Arts Centre in 2006, Hinton has championed the idea of bringing artists from across the country to build a company at the NAC.

That dream was realized last month when the ensemble began working together to present A Christmas Carol on Dec. 8 and Mother Courage and her Children here in January and at the Manitoba Theatre Centre in Winnipeg in February.

"There's a very different theatre scene and tradition in Vancouver than there is in Halifax, than there is in Toronto, than there is in Winnipeg," said Hinton. Part of the goal of the company, he said, is "to bring those different things together and see how they inform.

"Canada is … a very culturally diverse place," he said. "That means we can take a story like A Christmas Carol and see how it translates for different communities," he said.

Afghan governor investigated: Official

No evidence to back torture chamber claims found, committee hears

Canadian officials investigated claims that Kandahar's former governor was involved in torture but uncovered no evidence to prove it, a senior federal official said Thursday.

Claims that Asadullah Khalid was involved in abuse of prisoners was "widespread in Afghanistan," David Mulroney told a special House of Commons committee.

The federal government asked officials at the Canadian-run provincial reconstruction base in Kandahar to investigate the allegations that the governor ran a series of torture chambers, including one rumoured to be in the basement of the governor's palace.

"We could not find any evidence that we could bring to the Afghan government about this," said Mulroney, who oversaw the Afghan file in the Privy Council Office.

PAWEL DWULIT/THE CANADIAN PRESS

David Mulroney, Canada's ambassador to China, is seen before testifying in the Special Committee on the Canadian Mission in Afghanistan on Parliament Hill in Ottawa on Thursday.

"We visited his residence, we didn't see any facility."

He noted that other political figures in Afghanistan have faced similar allegations, but the fact that the Canadian government sent investigators to collect evidence on Khalid was a stunning revelation that sheds more light on the sometimes bitter internal debate that raged over the governor.

The debate boiled over in public in 2008 when former foreign affairs minister Maxime Bernier, at the end of a visit to Kandahar, mused aloud that he'd pushed President Hamid Karzai to replace Khalid.

"We spoke to people at a very high level in Kabul to express our concerns, but we never had any item that we could specifically point to," Mulroney said.

In his testimony before the Commons Afghanistan committee last week, diplomat whistleblower Richard Colvin said Khalid was known as a "bad actor on human rights" and that Canada was anxious to see him gone.

But Mulroney's testimony calls into question statements given Wednesday by Brig.-Gen. David Fraser, the country's ground commander in Kandahar in 2006. The general was asked point blank whether he was aware of any allegations that the governor was involved in prisoner abuse.

"I didn't receive any information about that," Fraser told the committee.

New Democrat MP Paul Dewar wondered how diplomats, who were few in number on the ground in 2006, could have heard so much about the governor and yet the military commander that met with Khalid regularly was not aware of the allegations.

ATTIRE Three topless female protesters have tested the limits of artistic freedom at a protest outside the B.C. legislature against government cuts to the arts. The chanting women painted green, with messages such as The Naked Truth scribbled on their bodies, wore black tape and loin cloths.

But their protest on a chilly afternoon sparked a debate over artistic licence when organizers told them their costumes weren't approved legislature protest attire. Organizer Dianne Searle says she was forced to tell the women to cease and desist after legislature guards threatened to shut down the entire event.

Feds aim to make it harder to bring prisoners back to Canada

The Harper government introduced legislation Thursday to make it tougher for Canadians imprisoned abroad to serve out their sentences in Canada.

The bill would expand the conditions prisoners must meet before being allowed to obtain transfers to Canadian jails.

Among other things, they would have to satisfy the government that they pose no threat to public safety, that they've taken part in rehabilitation programs, have co-operated with law-enforcement agencies and accepted responsibility for their crimes.

"Right now, the law emphasizes the interests of the criminal," Public Safety Minister Peter Van Loan said. "We are rebalancing that law to take into account the interests of Canadian society."

Demand for H1N1 flu shot dropping

Flu Outbreak

VACCINE The time to roll up a sleeve to get an H1N1 flu shot is coming to an end at some public clinics in Ontario.

Some health units are seeing a drop in both H1N1 activity and demand for the swine flu shot and plan to wind down their mass vaccination clinics, even as the death toll from H1N1 rises in the province.

Other areas are adding clinics due to increased demand, while still others are transitioning clinics to now provide the seasonal flu shot.

Hamilton's last date for its mass H1N1 vaccination clinics will be Dec. 4, although residents can still get the swine flu shot from their family doctor or through the city's regular immunization clinics.

"We've seen a drop in the number of people visiting our clinics so we will be looking at the more traditional routes available for vaccinations such as family doctors and walk-in clinics," Dr. Elizabeth Richardson, Hamilton's medical officer of health, said in a statement.

95 Ontario has had 95 lab-confirmed H1N1 deaths since April.

In Ottawa, there are no immediate plans to close mass vaccination clinics but the health unit continues to monitor demand closely and will adjust clinic hours accordingly, said Dr. Isra Levy, medical officer of health.

"Ottawa Public Health continues to see interest from the public for the vaccine and we continue to vaccinate several thousand people each day at our clinics," said Levy.

Doctors study healing liquid

Stem cells, rats and a special healing liquid.

All may spell H-E-L-P for premature babies with lung disease, experts say.

An international team headed by a University of Alberta researcher has used the stem cells to heal and protect the lungs of newborn rats.

Dr. Bernard Thebaud's team injected stem cells from bone marrow into the rats' airways. Two weeks later, the rodents were running twice as far on treadmills and had better survival rates.

The cells pumped out a healing liquid scientists are working to understand.

"That healing liquid seems to boost the power of healthy lung cells and helps them to repair the lungs," said Thebaud,

East Coast initiative to help rare whales

ENVIRONMENT Lobster fishermen on the East Coast are uniting to help rare North Atlantic right whales — one of the world's most endangered marine mammals.

The fishermen are trying to reduce a major threat to the whales by controlling the amount of lethal fishing line in the water.

They are altering the way they set lobster traps and will steer clear of the whales as they pass through the Bay of Fundy in a bid to cut the number of times the whales get snarled in fishing line.

Starting Monday, when the lobster season opens in parts of the Bay of Fundy, hundreds of lobster harvesters will be asked to set their groundlines on the ocean floor to limit floating ropes and protect the whales against one of their main killers.

Hubert Saulnier, a veteran fisherman in the Bay of Fundy where many of the massive mammals go to feed in the summer, said the initiative should reduce the amount of fishing line that floats above the ocean floor and ensnares the whales.

It's estimated 75 per cent of the remaining North Atlantic right whales have scars on their bodies from fishing line, which they run into as they journey from their breeding grounds off Georgia and Florida to the Bay of Fundy.

The ropes can cause fatal infections, drown the whale on the ocean floor or prevent them from eating properly if they wrap around the mouth.

Bob Rangeley of the World Wildlife Fund said the measures could go a long way to protecting the slow-moving, 17-metre animals that are also vulnerable to ship strikes.

PM makes Iggy look a bit green

Liberal Leader Michael Ignatieff was outlining green policies in a wide-ranging speech Thursday — when his chief rival swooped in to steal his thunder.

Prime Minister Stephen Harper let it be known — right in the middle of Ignatieff's speech — that he will attend the global climate conference in Copenhagen alongside U.S. President Barack Obama.

Ignatieff was in the middle of telling a Quebec audience he favours a cap-and-trade system in which companies would make money by going green, and polluters would need to pay. Ignatieff said he hopes such a plan would fit into a global system, and work in conjunction with any plan set up in the U.S.

Harper's spokesperson Dimitri Soudas said the prime minister decided to go to Copenhagen after Barack Obama and Chinese Premier Wen Jiabao announced their attendance.

Soudas said Harper's decision was based on the fact that now "a critical mass of world leaders will be attending."

The Tories have consistently downplayed expectations for the conference. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Iggy's ideas

- A system in which companies buy credits if they pass an emissions level while greener firms collect credits for under-polluting.
- He wants to quadruple the renewable energy used in Canada by 2017 — Canada's 150th birthday.
- He wants Canada to be a better steward of the Arctic.

Olympics good news for B.C.'s Liberals

GAMES B.C.'s Liberals are in an Olympic party mood after a season of bad news.

The Liberals ended a fall session Thursday that saw the government pass a record deficit budget that included deep cuts in grants to social, sport and volunteer organizations.

"We're, like most of the province, tremendously excited by the fact that we are just under 80 days away from the … Olympic and Paralympic games," said Liberal House Leader Mike de Jong.

He said the New Democrats spent months criticizing the Games, but predicted that tone will change as the date for the opening ceremonies in February approaches.

"When that flame starts to move closer … you're going to see … the NDP try to distance themselves from their own record, their own criticism."

Protests force Vancouver to rewrite Games sign bylaw

OLYMPICS Municipal staff in Vancouver have rewritten a controversial sign bylaw after activists alleged it would give police sweeping powers to seize protest materials during the 2010 Winter Olympics.

Council approved bylaw changes during the summer aimed at allowing the city to tackle ambush marketing during the Games by quickly removing signs erected without proper permits.

Civil liberties groups and Olympic critics charged that provisions in the bylaw would allow police or bylaw officers to enter their homes and take protest signs.

But a new version of the bylaw changes will be presented to council next week that limits the stricter enforcement rules — which are temporary and expire after the Games — to commercial signs only. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Could we have done more to prevent these war victims being traumatized again?

8 years ago...

"On average, a Tamil woman is raped by members of the Sri Lankan security forces every two weeks. The real number is inevitably higher since many cases are unreported."

- Deirdre McConnel, Women Against Rape, April 2001 in UN Human Rights Session.

Today... 115,000 women and girls are subjected to sexual harassments and intimidations by the Sri Lankan state and paramilitary forces in detention camps. The Government of Sri Lanka continues to use rape as a means to silence the war victims.

Speak for the silenced. Ask your Member of Parliament to stand up for Democracy and Human Rights in Sri Lanka. It is the Canadian thing to do.

Hospitality houses to bring world flavour

VANCOUVER 2010 Games

An upscale bistro on Vancouver's Granville Island will feel a lot like Switzerland during the 2010 Winter Olympics, serving chocolate fondue and, of course, Swiss cheese along with other authentic dishes from the Western European country.

The House of Switzerland will be one of many so-called hospitality houses that will be set up by competing countries, sports teams and sponsors during the 2010 Games, turning the city's downtown into a regular United Nations of food, drink and entertainment.

The countries or organizations staging the houses spend millions of dollars to take over local restaurants, bars or even custom-built temporary structures, and the sites have become an integral — if mostly private — part of every Olympics.

Bridges Restaurant will be plastered with Switzerland's iconic white cross flag and have daily activities such as quizzes about the country and chocolate tasting on Valentine's Day.

"People can meet there, can learn something about Switzerland, can enjoy a Swiss atmosphere," says Xenia Schlegel of the country's Department of Foreign Affairs.

"We're adding a few Swiss people to the existing (restaurant) staff, who treat the guests in a Swiss kind of way."

The Swiss government is spending about $2.5 million to set up at Bridges and at another restaurant in Whistler, and both will play host to Swiss broadcasters.

Ireland's house will be at a downtown Irish pub and Russia's will showcase the 2014 Olympics in Sochi at a giant waterfront globe that houses the city's Science Centre.

The massive 7,500-square-metre facility located near the Olympic ice hockey arena will broadcast all of the men's and women's games on giant screens. In between, it will feature performances from the likes of musicians Sam Roberts and Colin James.

Skiers pin hopes on GPS device

OLYMPICS It's known as STEALTH and Canada's alpine skiers hope it will make them faster at the 2010 Winter Olympics.

Until Thursday, it had also been a closely guarded secret.

The Sensor for the Training of Elite Athletes — or STEALTH — is a Global Positioning System (GPS) unit that helps skiers find the fastest route down the mountain. STEALTH also tells them which ski and wax combinations work the best. Knowing it's too late for any of their competitors to copy the technology before the Games open Feb. 12, Own The Podium and the Schulich School of Engineering at the University of Calgary lifted the veil Thursday.

Suit launched on gold company

INDUSTRY Ventana Gold Corp. said Thursday the owner of a gold mine in Columbia has launched legal action in an attempt to invalidate an option agreement for Ventana's subsidiary CVS Explorations Ltd. to buy the mine.

Sociedad Minera La Bodega Limitada, the seller of the mine, is seeking arbitration to have the property returned after CVS operated there for almost four years.

In 2006, Ventana and the Colombian companies entered an agreement for CVS to acquire the property mineral rsights through a series of staged payments.

Revelations rock Ireland

Report says church covered up decades of child abuse

Bishops of the Roman Catholic Church in Ireland covered up decades of child abuse by priests in order to protect the church's reputation, an expert commission reported Thursday after a three-year investigation.

Abuse victims welcomed the commission's report on the Dublin Archdiocese's mishandling of child abuse cases — one of several government investigations into chronic child rape, beatings and other cruelty in Catholic-run schools, children's workhouses and orphanages from 1975 to 2004. The government said the investigation "shows clearly that a systemic, calculated perversion of power and trust was visited on helpless and innocent children in the archdiocese."

"The perpetrators must continue to be brought to justice, and the people of Ireland must know that this can never happen again," the government said, also apologizing for the state's failure to hold church authorities accountable to the law.

This is the second major government-ordered report this year exploring why authorities permitted widespread abuse of boys and girls at the hands of the Catholic Church throughout most of the 20th century, the gravest scandal in the history of independent Ireland. The 720-page report — delivered to the government in July but released Thursday — analyzes the cases of 46 priests against whom 320 complaints were filed.

The 46 were selected from more than 150 Dublin priests implicated in molesting or raping boys and girls since 1940. Eleven priests convicted of child abuse are named in the report, but 33 are referred to by aliases and two have their names blacked out because they have yet to face justice. The report rejected past bishops' key claim that they were ignorant of both the scale and criminality of priests' abuse of children, showing that the Dublin Archdiocese negotiated a 1987 insurance policy for future legal costs of defending lawsuits and compensation claims. Australia to shoot dead 6,000 camels

OUTBACK Australian authorities plan to corral about 6,000 wild camels with helicopters and gun them down after they overran a small Outback town in search of water, trampling fences, smashing tanks and contaminating supplies.

The Northern Territory government announced its plan Wednesday for Docker River, a town of 350 residents where thirsty camels have been arriving daily for weeks because of drought conditions in the region.

"The community of Docker River is under siege by 6,000 marauding, wild camels," local government minister Rob Knight said in Alice Springs, 500 kilometres northeast of Docker.

"This is a very critical situation out there, it's very unusual and it needs urgent action."

The carcasses of camels killed in stampedes are contaminating the water supply, he added. The government plans to use helicopters to herd the camels some 15 kilometres outside of town next week, where they will be shot and their carcasses left to decay in the desert. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Berlusconi divorce gets down to hard cash

ITALY Premier Silvio Berlusconi's estranged wife is seeking $65 million US a year in alimony in a divorce case she launched after her husband was embroiled in a sex scandal, a bid that was immediately rejected by the billionaire media mogul, an Italian newspaper reported Thursday.

Veronica Lario and Silvio Berlusconi

Veronica Lario's lawyer, Maria Cristina Morelli, declined to comment on the report in Corriere della Sera.

Corriere della Sera, citing what it said were "informed sources," said Berlusconi, Italy's second-richest man, made a counteroffer of $300,000 monthly, and indicated willingness to go up to $400,000 monthly.

Berlusconi, 73, is listed by Forbes magazine as the 70th richest person in the world, worth $6.5 billion.

Lario, a 52-year-old former actress, said earlier this year she was fed up with Berlusconi's infatuation with young women and was seeking divorce.

The scandal swirls around several parties and dinners at Berlusconi's Sardinia estate and Rome residence. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Mayor turns self in, denies murders

PHILIPPINES Under threat of military attack, the leader of the clan suspected in the slaughter of 57 people in the southern Philippines turned himself in Thursday, and prosecutors say he will face murder charges in the country's worst election violence ever. Andal Ampatuan Jr., a town mayor, maintains he had nothing to do with the ambush of a convoy carrying his political rival's family, supporters and at least 22 journalists. Their bodies — mowed down by point-blank shots and some hacked up — were found in mass graves hastily dug by a backhoe. Some were buried with their vehicles. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Iran confiscates Nobel medal

NORWAY Iranian authorities have confiscated Nobel Peace laureate Shirin Ebadi's medal, her lawyer and Norway's government said Thursday, in a sign of the increasingly drastic steps they are taking against any dissent. In Norway, where the peace prize is awarded, the government said the confiscation was a shocking first in the history of the 108-year-old prize.

Ebadi, a human rights lawyer, won the Nobel Peace Prize in 2003 for her efforts in promoting democracy. She has long faced harassment from Iranian authorities for her activities. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Iran charges scholar with espionage

Iran brought new espionage charges against an Iranian-American scholar who was already convicted of spying and sentenced to 15 years in prison in the country's crackdown following June's disputed presidential election, a human rights group said Thursday. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

People ride on an overcrowded train to reach their villages ahead of Eid al-Adha in Lahore Thursday. Eid al-Adha, or the Feast of the Sacrifice, is celebrated to commemorate the prophet Ibrahim's faith in being willing to sacrifice his son.

Zelaya dealt another blow

The Honduran Supreme Court recommended Thursday that lawmakers vote against restoring ousted President Manuel Zelaya, another blow for his quickly fading chances of returning to power.

The Supreme Court submitted its opinion six days before Congress is scheduled to vote on Zelaya's fate as part of a U.S.-brokered agreement to end the political crisis over a June coup.

The justices concluded that Zelaya should not be restored to the presidency because he has criminal charges pending against him, Supreme Court spokesman Danilo Izaguirre said.

"While he faces judicial charges, he cannot return to power," Izaguirre said.

Zelaya, who has been holed up in the Brazilian Embassy since sneaking back into the country from his forced exile Sept. 21, has declared the U.S.-backed pact a failure, arguing Congress is violating the spirit of the agreement by waiting until after presidential elections Sunday to decide his future.

The agreement called for the formation of a unity government but left the decision on restoring Zelaya up to Congress, which was given the option of consulting the Supreme Court and other institutions.

The Supreme Court justices had initially deemed Zelaya's ouster legal because he violated court orders to cancel a referendum on rewriting the constitution.

Opponents say Zelaya wanted to lift a ban on presidential re-election; Zelaya denies that was his goal.

Soldiers arrested Zelaya and whisked him out the country at gunpoint on June 28. Hours later, Congress voted to back his ouster.

Western Hemisphere countries, once united in condemning the coup, are divided on whether to recognize the elections, which had been scheduled before Zelaya's ouster.

News in brief

NUCLEAR The outgoing head of the International Atomic Energy Agency said Thursday his probe of Iran's nuclear program is at "a dead end" and that trust in Tehran's credibility is shrinking after its belated revelation that it was secretly building a nuclear facility. Mohamed ElBaradei's blunt criticism of the Islamic Republic was notable in representing a broad convergence with U.S. opinion, which for years was critical of the IAEA for what it perceived as his softness on Iran.

HACKER The British government said Thursday it will not prevent the extradition of a hacker accused of breaking into U.S. military computers. Home Secretary Alan Johnson said he will not intervene in the case of Gary McKinnon, who is accused by prosecutors of hacking into computers in 2001. His lawyers have argued that he has a form of autism and is at risk of suicide if extradited, but Johnson said he did not believe that was a valid reason for stopping legal proceedings. Questions continue over brain-damaged man

BELGIUM Rom Houben's mother remembers her son's amazement when he finally started communicating again after spending 23 years locked in a paralyzed body that was misdiagnosed as vegetative.

"Early on, he was surprised that the words came out of his finger," Fina Nicolaes said. "Now, he is busy writing a book."

However, his communication, with the help of a speech therapist holding his hand punching a touch screen, is stirring controversy only days after the story of his comeback as a fully conscious man entombed in an immobile body captured the world's imagination.

It has scholars questioning the technique of facilitated communication, bloggers denouncing it as a cruel farce, and millions asking as they watch the video of Houben's hand being held as it quickly types into the screen — who is really doing the punching here?

When news of Houben's recovery and the video hit the world this week, some people immediately began raising doubts.

Communication

- Doctors point out that it has been three years since Houben was discovered to be conscious and he has had much time to improve his communication skills. In the early stages they were basic and through practice he has been able to communicate as fluidly as he does now, they say.

Scandal of the skirt

Brazilian student to march in famous parades

Brazilians may be seeing a whole lot more of the student whose short pink dress got her booted from college: She's agreed to march in the nation's famously flesh-baring Carnival parades.

Geisy Arruda, who became an instant celebrity after being heckled by hundreds of fellow students because of her dress, said Thursday she has accepted invitations to participate with samba groups in Rio de Janeiro and Sao Paulo.

"It will be a dream come true for me," Arruda said just before giving a deposition to police investigating the students who harassed her on Oct. 22 at the University Bandeirante in Sao Bernardo do Campo, just outside Sao Paulo.

Arruda, 20, said she will parade for the Leandro de Itaquera samba school in Sao Paulo, and the Porto da Pedra school in Rio. The Rio and Sao Paulo parades are broadcast live throughout the nation of more than 190 million people.

"Sometimes, good things come from bad things," she said.

Many women featured in Carnival dance nearly nude in feathered costumes, but Arruda didn't say how naked she's willing to get.

Geisy Arruda

Porto da Pedra's theme for this year's parade at the Sambadrome will be "What will I wear?" — addressing the evolution of fashion. It wasn't yet known what kind of costume Arruda will wear or if she will be on top of a float.

"I hope to look good," Arruda said, as photographers kept trying to get a good shot of the student who became an Internet sensation after video of what happened at the school appeared on YouTube. She had to put on a professor's white coat and left the campus amid a hail of insults and curses.

The private university expelled Arruda, alleging her provocative attitude, not her dress, caused the near riot. After a national uproar, the university reinstated her.

Arruda has made the circuit of television talks shows in Brazil and has said she is enjoying her fame, but she denied any plans to pose nude for men's magazines. "I don't want to get exposed like that," she said.

Arruda, who was studying tourism, said she hoped to finish her freshman year at Bandeirante and transfer to another school in 2010. But she said she hasn't returned to class because she still fears for her safety.

Her lawyers have asked the university to guarantee her safety, but they say the school has not given any assurance.

"I want to go back, but I'm very scared right now," Arruda said. "Without some help from the university, there is no way I can return. They haven't done anything yet."

The phone rang unanswered at the school's media office Thursday, but officials there earlier said that Arruda would be safe if she comes back.

Three killed in Russian day of violence

RUSSIA Violence in three provinces of Russia's North Caucasus left three people dead Thursday — one senior police officer, one suspected militant and one bystander.

Chechnya and neighbouring North Caucasus provinces have remained mired in violence stemming from wars between separatist Chechen rebels and the Russian government.

More than 50 police officers have been gunned down by Islamic militants in Dagestan alone so far this year.

Where city walkers fear to tread

UrbanCompass

A new report in the Lancet medical journal on the health benefits of fighting global warming makes the usual prescriptions for cities, like making them easier places to walk and bike.

There are many splendid walking and bike routes here in Ottawa, but it's no secret that much of the city is built for cars, and walkers take their chances.

According to the most recent City of Ottawa Safety Report, collisions killed 30 people here last year, 10 of them pedestrians. A safety campaign advises, "Walk as if your life depended on it," and it's good advice, but a little more attention, and right-of-way to the small, the soft and the slow, would be appreciated.

The city's report also identified a "red zone" of 10 intersections where the most accidents occurred. Three intersections of St. Laurent Boulevard made the list — at Belfast Road, Industrial Avenue and Coventry Road.

Ah, Coventry Road, home to historic Empty Stadium in the heart of the industrial park. I bused with a companion to the train station this week, intending to walk to the Hampton Inn on Coventry.

Kitty-corner from the butt-ugly RCMP headquarters, it would be easily within walking distance, but a straight route would require crossing the Transitway and then a deadly game of Frogger across the 417. So we negotiated the obstacle course of concrete and gravel, across ramps spitting cars this way and that, on a circuitous and toe-curling trek to the hotel.

Even drivers are feeling the pain. When Canadian Automobile Association members voted on Ontario's 20 worst roads this year, Ottawa won dishonours for two — Riverside Drive and Carling Avenue. And if motorists struggle to navigate these multi-lane traffic sewers, rest assured it's even worse for those humping it along the sidewalk — at such points where a sidewalk is available.

Riverside's intersections make the city's crash-plagued red zone list twice, at Hunt Club and Heron. Carling isn't statistically deadly enough to make the cut, but pieces of white plastic body moulding at Carling and Loretta testify to a recent crack-up.

Dickish driving elicited indignant honking near the Ottawa Hospital's Civic Campus Wednesday as I considered the pedestal-mounted, heroic-scale statue of Harold Fisher, apparently Ottawa's mayor from 1917 to 1920. "If you would see his monument, look around you," proclaims his plaque.

One is doubtless supposed to behold the hospital, on which His Worship cut the ribbon, but I was too busy dodging traffic and sucking fumes in the rain on the CAA-rated seventh worst road in Ontario.

That's some monument, Harry.

Radicalism and racism: Polarities to avoid

InStep

With news of the Fort Hood rampage in Texas and the revamped Canadian citizenship guide warning newcomers that "barbaric cultural practices" will not be tolerated, conflicting debates about terrorism and our expectations in the West are once again active and will continue to be until we collectively confront the two menacing forces of radicalism and racism.

Both of these variables are alive and well and should invoke a deep horror. Yet those who persistently deny the reality of any one of these insidious evils do so to the peril of our society as a whole.

So let's start with racism. Labelling and stigmatizing people lead to deep divisions within a society and facilitate a hostile environment, not conducive to the positive growth of an increasingly diverse civilization. Many Muslims have been on the receiving end of stigmatization. We need to be clear that the vast majority of Muslims in the West are peace loving.

Muslims who regularly attend mosque and read the Qur'an should not automatically translate into our minds as enemies of our democracy.

In fact, moderate Muslims are referred to as apostates by radical groups and they understand the threat of extremist zeal even more than non-Muslims. The Muslim Canadian Congress has frequently stood up in defence of our democratic values, while renouncing all attempts to conceal the nature of extremism. It continues to do so even in the face of death threats. So we need to think twice before exercising discrimination on all people of the Muslim faith.

It is only those Muslims who embrace a militant and extreme ideology rooted in Salafism that we need to be concerned about. Salafism is often used interchangeably with Wahabbism and, in its most extreme form, calls for jihad by the sword against all perceived enemies of Islam — particularly the West — and includes the subjugation of women, sometimes brutal.

We cannot afford to import this irrational zeal, which is accepted and encouraged in many parts of the world. We have every right to challenge such ideologies.

It is time for us to make clear distinctions between peace-loving Muslims from those who are radicals. Suppressing open discussion and dialogue only serves to drive the evils of racism and radicalism underground where both can flourish to the detriment of all us all.

Dealers file suit against GM Canada

A group of dealers is suing General Motors of Canada for millions of dollars in damages for alleged contract breaches and are seeking a court injunction to stop the auto giant from terminating their franchises.

Eleven longtime Southern Ontario dealers and one from Prince Edward Island filed a statement of claim in Ontario court on Thursday.

The dealers say they want a permanent injunction to prohibit GM from ending their agreements and a declaration entitling them to remain open for at least five years.

250 GM announced in May that it would close between 240 and 250 dealerships by October 2010 when franchise agreements expire.

Their claim is seeking unidentified compensatory damages for loss of profit, goodwill, reputation, market share and business opportunities because of the alleged breaches plus $1.5 million in punitive damages for each dealer.

The claim follows General Motors' announcement in May that the company would close between 240 and 250 dealerships, or more than one-third of its Canadian store network by the end of October 2010 when franchise agreements expire.

More than 200 dealers have accepted wind down agreements and closed their stores.

Macy's New route for traditional parade

FRANK FRANKLIN II/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Spiderman float is guided across Central Park South during the Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade Thursday in New York. Macy's parade still owns the city's biggest stage — even after going off Broadway. The new 2.65-mile route took clowns, floats and bands from Central Park West to Seventh Avenue before thousands of tourists and balloon-loving New Yorkers. The parade had to be rerouted as parts of Broadway are now closed to vehicular traffic, making floats off-limits.

Rogers Communications to cut 900 jobs

Rogers Communications Inc. says it's laying off about 900 employees across Canada, mostly in executive and management positions, in an effort to streamline operations as it grapples with intensifying competition.

A spokeswoman for the telecommunications and media giant didn't give a precise figure for the number of people affected, but said the layoffs represent three per cent of the company's total workforce of 30,000 across the country.

"The goal was to streamline the organization, remove the number of layers and enable quick and faster decision making," said Rogers spokeswoman Terrie Tweddle in an interview Thursday.

Dubai seeks 'standstill' on massive debt

Just a year after the global downturn derailed Dubai's explosive growth, the city is now so swamped in debt that it's asking for a six-month reprieve on paying its bills — causing a drop on world markets Thursday and raising questions about Dubai's reputation as a magnet for international investment.

The fallout came swiftly after a Wednesday statement that Dubai's main development engine, Dubai World, would ask creditors for a "standstill" on paying back its $60 billion debt until at least May.

The company's real estate arm, Nakheel, shoulders the bulk of money due to banks, investment houses and outside development contractors.

In total, the state-backed networks nicknamed Dubai Inc. are $80 billion in the red and the emirate needed a bailout earlier this year from its oil-rich neighbour Abu Dhabi, the capital of the United Arab Emirates.

Markets took the news badly — with the Dubai woes and the continued fall of the U.S. dollar giving investors twin worries.

Gold miners oppose private member's bill

MINING Canada's three largest gold miners are criticizing a private member's bill that, if passed, would govern the activities of Canadian companies operating in developing countries.

Barrick Gold Corp., Goldcorp Inc. and Kinross Gold Corp. say Bill C-300, currently before a parliamentary committee, is "unnecessary and damaging to Canadian business."

The bill, brought forward by Liberal MP John McKay, allows the ministers of foreign affairs and international trade to receive environmental or human rights complaints from Canadians or citizens of the country in question about a Canadian company's international operations.

If an investigation finds the company to be in violation of the guidelines set out in the act, the company may become ineligible for government support.

The three miners say the bill would risk Canadian companies' competitive position, result in reputational damage and create incentive for multinational companies to relocate outside of Canada.

Lululemon targets tween audiences

Company's Ivivva line markets to girls ages 6-12

Lululemon Athletica Inc. has outfitted the yoga mom generation in trendy active wear and now its Ivivva Athletica brand is targeting their daughters.

"There's some very excited young girls out there," said Lululemon CEO Christine Day in a phone interview from Vancouver.

"I think we have an opportunity to improve tremendously on what young women wear."

Ivivva, a brightly coloured, dance-inspired line for girls aged six to 12, is debuting beside Lululemon's flagship Vancouver store Friday, followed by locations in Victoria and Calgary in December.

Ivivva stores will be independent of, but near Lululemon stores, with initial sales geared toward girls with moms who shop at Lululemon, Day said.

"Definitely what you've got is an athletic parent shopping and the goal is to increase (sales) on the number of young women who participate in athletic sports."

Earnings

- Lululemon's foray into the pre-teen market comes after it raised earnings guidance last month for its third quarter due to better than expected fall sales and launches as holiday shopping picks up.

Lululemon's foray into the pre-teen market comes after it raised earnings guidance last month for its third quarter due to better than expected fall sales and launches as holiday shopping picks up.

Ivivva clothing, which will cost about 30 per cent less than Lululemon, will initially focus on dance, gymnastics and general athletics and expand to team wear, such as warm up and training uniforms, next fall.

"For young active girls, one of the barriers is they want to look good, so they drop out of sports and spend their time trying to look good, so were trying to make it easy for them to do both."

Ivivva was developed so girls can go straight from practice to the mall.

Day said it will be Coco Chanel's daughter meets Tofino, referring to the laid-back Vancouver Island destination famous for its surfing and rainforest.

"(The colours are) not like baby blue and pink, like for little kids. They're more appropriate for the maturing girl who does have a sense of fashion and fun."

The fitting room area will have a runway, where girls can model for their friends and include "Coco's closet" areas.

Grey Cup a story of valiant teams

The vast majority of those millions who will tune in to watch the 97th Grey Cup classic on TV won't know a single player's name on either team prior to the kickoff. But that's not the point. Sure, Anthony Calvillo of the Alouettes has been a stalwart CFL quarterback for many seasons and his Roughrider counterpart Darian Durant has emerged as a bona fide star to deliver Saskatchewan to the cusp of gridiron glory yet again.

However, neither of these personalities, nor any of those who will take the field at Calgary's McMahon Stadium can come close to eclipsing the magnetism of their respective squads.

It's what makes the Grey Cup different and gives it heightened drama.

The team's the paramount thing and the success of the November spectacle will rest upon a tale woven by helmeted representatives of vastly different communities which coexist in a big country.

The Roughriders are the perennial long shots.

They are football's version of a prairie David to the Goliaths of eastern Canada. The club from Saskatchewan is publicly owned and its many investors have much more than an imaginary stake in the outcome of every match. Only three times in 17 tries have the "Green Riders" captured the coveted chalice.

Then again, the role of underdog charmingly adds to their mystique.

Meantime, Montreal's football team draws its nickname from a bird in Quebecois folklore.

The Alouettes, like the mythical Phoenix, have risen from the ashes to ward off extinction and make the CFL strong again in French-speaking Canada. Along with an agonizing absence from 1987 to 1996 and a subsequent rise to power, the Als hatched a huge interest in collegiate and community football in the province. They have repaid their followers with consistent competitiveness if not Grey Cup championships — just five victories in 16 tries.

So who to root for?

Perhaps the answer is both teams.

After all that's the lure of the Grey Cup classic isn't it? It's all about a game, which has the ability to soar above rudimentary statistical analysis and a handful of star players who play for multi-million dollar contracts.

The magic to be found in the Grey Cup has to do with valiant teams and the contribution they make to this country's fabled, football history.

Riders look to 'Canadian Air Force'

Saskatchewan's Grey Cup hopes riding on homegrown receivers

GREY CUP PREVIEW
Roughriders vs Alouettes

In order to beat the Montreal Alouettes in Sunday's Grey Cup, the Saskatchewan Roughriders will have to get continued offensive production from their talented receiving corps.

Dubbed the "Canadian Air Force," receivers Andy Fantuz, Chris Getzlaf and Rob Bagg all hauled in touchdown catches as the Riders qualified for the CFL final by downing the Calgary Stampeders 27-17 in Regina last Sunday.

"It wasn't a surprise to us," Bagg said about the trio's production in the West final. "It would have been more disappointing if we hadn't performed."

With the Alouettes hungry to erase last season's Grey Cup loss to the Stamps at home in Montreal, Bagg said the Riders will have to be at their best to emerge with a victory.

"They're obviously a veteran group that's incredibly talented and experienced," said the 24-year-old, who hails from Kingston. "We're going to have to play our best game, but I think we'll be able to do that and it's going to be an exciting one."

Getzlaf, who led the Riders with six receiving touchdowns in the regular season, gave a lot of credit to Saskatchewan quarterback Darian Durant for being able to hit open receivers with precise passes on a consistent basis.

Chris Getzlaf

"Darian does a great job of reading defences and finding who's open and we're able to create mismatches wherever need be and he's able to pick teams apart," said the 26-year-old Regina native.

In his fourth campaign with the Riders, Fantuz rebounded from a broken leg he suffered last season to finish second behind Weston Dressler on the squad with 882 receiving yards to go with four touchdowns.

With Dressler out of the lineup since Oct. 10 with a broken leg and fractured ankle, the likes of Fantuz, Getzlaf and Bagg were called upon to elevate their play did so to earn their Canadian Air Force nickname. THE CANADIAN PRESS

'Leap of faith' pays off for Als, as Canadian anchors defence

A feel-good story of Grey Cup week is the Saskatchewan Roughriders use of four Canadian receivers, but the Montreal Alouettes have a ratio-changer of their own in linebacker Shea Emry.

Shea Emry

The 23-year-old from Richmond, B.C., played almost exclusively on special teams as a rookie last season, but hard work in the off-season and a string training camp won him the job of starting middle linebacker.

The six-foot-tall, 235-pounder will be in that spot when the Alouettes face the Roughriders in the Grey Cup game on Sunday.

"The coaches kind of took a leap of faith in giving me the job right out of camp and I jumped at the opportunity and did my best," Emry said Thursday.

The Alouettes wanted to be bigger and have better man-to-man coverage from their defence this season and part of that was to change the group of linebackers.

Only Diamond Ferri stayed put, while Emry moved into the middle and Chip Cox moved from defensive back to linebacker, with rookie Ramon Guzman slotting in during games.

They contributed to a defence that was best in the league this season, leading in 21 of the 25 defensive statistical categories that the CFL keeps.

Their 324 points allowed was 104 fewer than the next-best team, Hamilton, and they gave up nearly 400 fewer rushing yards than any other club. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Injuries don't stop Senators

Blue Jackets 1 Senators 2

AT

Despite a rash of injuries, the Ottawa Senators are proving to be a resilient bunch.

Nick Foligno scored the go-ahead goal with just over six minutes left in the third as the Senators beat the Columbus Blue Jackets 2-1 on Thursday night.

Jason Spezza added his second of the season, while Brian Elliot came up with a 32-save performance for Ottawa (13-7-3).

Kristian Huselius scored the lone goal for Columbus (12-9-3). Steve Mason was solid in defeat, turning aside 34 shots.

With the loss the Blue Jackets finished their five-game road trip with a 1-3-1 record.

The Senators were without Mike Fisher, Chris Neil, Anton Volchenkov and Pascal Leclaire due to injury, but did have Alex Kovalev back in the lineup. The Russian missed the last three games following the death of his mother-in-law.

Kovalev mesmerized the 19,244 on hand at Scotiabank Place with his puck handling, again proving why he is known as "l'artiste."

Now all the Senators need is for some of those moves to result in goals. While Ottawa, managed to create a number of chances against Columbus, they had difficulty beating Mason.

Last season's rookie of the year has struggled this season, but showed flashes of his former self against the Senators.

NFL The Pittsburgh Steelers have met with experienced quarterbacks Patrick Ramsey and Todd Bouman, a sign that injured backup Charlie Batch might be out longer than the team first expected. Batch broke his left wrist in Kansas City on Sunday.

Lions maintain losing tradition

NFL

Packers 34 Lions 12

AT

The Detroit Lions used to take a lot of pride in playing on U.S. Thanksgiving.

Lately, the Lions have been getting embarrassed when the nation tunes in to watch them.

Aaron Rodgers matched a career high with three touchdown passes and Charles Woodson grabbed two of his team's four interceptions, giving the Green Bay Packers a 34-12 win over Detroit. The Lions have lost six straight games on the holiday, setting a franchise record, by an average of 23.2 points and eight of nine in the showcase game

The latest loss was an emotional setback for Detroit (2-9) four days after Matthew Stafford's gutsy play capped its biggest comeback win since 1957.

"It's a different feeling in this locker room — especially on national television to come out like that," Detroit centre Dominic Raiola said.

Before its recent slide, Detroit won four straight and nine of 12 on Thanksgiving before ex-general manager Matt Millen arrived in 2001 and made a lacklustre franchise awful.

Green Bay (7-4) has won three straight since losing to Tampa Bay to improve its post-season prospects.

Calvillo earns CFL outstanding player award

Montreal Alouettes quarterback Anthony Calvillo is the CFL's outstanding player for the second straight year.

Calvillo received the award for the third time in his 16-year career Thursday at the CFL's awards banquet.

Calvillo, 37, enjoyed a banner '09 season, completing a stellar 72 per cent of his passes in helping lead Montreal to a CFL-best 15-3 record. His passing completion average was the best he has enjoyed since joining the league in 1994 with the expansion Las Vegas Posse.

New Winter Service

Avoid winter road conditions and leave the driving to us!

Service Changes Start Saturday, November 28

On Saturday, November 28, winter schedules go into effect on many routes. Obtain a new timetable if you use the following routes: 1 through 106, 112 through 118, 123, 124, 128, 129, 133, 145, 146, 147, 149, 150, 152, 155, 156, 157, 158, 162, 166, 167, 169, 170, 172, 176, 177, 178, 179, 182 through 283, and the O-Train.

Highlights

22 Will have some trips extended south along Trim and Montmere to Blackburn, effective January 4, in order to bring service closer to residents in this new neighbourhood.

35 Will have a new trip added departing Innes and Orchardview at 5:54 a.m. which will help meet the high demand for service.

94 Trips that start and end at Innes and Trim will be extended to the new Millennium Park & Ride lot located on Millennium Drive east of Trim Road, just south of Innes.

101 Will no longer deviate via Solandt Drive in Kanata.

118 Will be rerouted slightly to travel between Baseline Station and Baseline Road via a new connection to Constellation Drive.

128 Two trips will be added leaving Hurdman Station at 5:45 and 6:15 p.m. to extend and increase afternoon rush hour service. As well, the peak period supplemental trips to Innes and Tauvette will be extended to end at Southpark and Innes.

179 Will be rerouted slightly to travel between Baseline Station and Baseline Road via a new connection to Constellation Drive.

195 Will be removed from its temporary detour routing to travel between Fallowfield Station and the RCMP office on Leikin via Woodroffe, Longfields and Bill Leathem.

Kanata and Stittsville Express Routes 60, 61, 62, 63, 64, 65, 66, 68, 261, 262 and 263

In order to allow buses to take advantage of the fastest route and provide customers with a more direct trip downtown, some morning trips. will be rerouted. Instead of travelling via Bayshore and Pinecrest Stations, early morning trips will remain on Highway 417 to Queensway Station, while later morning trips will be unchanged.

You can find out which trips will be affected by checking a printed timetable or visiting octranspo.com. Afternoon service will continue to travel between Pinecrest and Bayshore Stations via the Transitway.

Customers at Bayshore and Pinecrest Stations will still have frequent service to downtown on Route 96. Customers on express routes who are travelling in the early morning to Bayshore or Pinecrest can continue to make their trip by transferring at Eagleson Station to Route 96.

Riverview Park & Ride Opens in Riverside South

A new Park & Ride lot will open on Monday, November 30, on Earl Armstrong across from The Plaza, and will serve the growing community in south Ottawa as well as the surrounding rural communities. Riverview Park & Ride will accommodate 155 vehicles in the first phase, with future capacity for almost 1,000 spaces. The lot will be served by Routes 99, 189 and 245.

- Route 99 will be revised to start and end at Riverview Park & Ride instead of The Plaza. Route 99 will continue to provide all day service through the community to Greenboro Station and a direct connection to downtown during rush hour.
- Peak period Routes 189 and 245 will be rerouted from The Plaza to travel via River Road and Earl Armstrong to connect with Route 99 at the Park & Ride lot.
- Route 145 will continue to serve the Plaza, as it does today, so that residents maintain good connections to local shopping. Transferring between Routes 145 and 99 can be made on Earl Armstrong at Riverview Park & Ride.

The temporary Park & Ride at Claudette Cain Park will be discontinued.

Millennium Park & Ride Opens in Orléans East

A new Park & Ride lot will open on Monday, November 30, on Millennium Drive east of Trim Road, just south of Innes. The new lot will serve the growing community in Orléans East as well as outlying communities. Millennium Park & Ride will accommodate 168 vehicles in the first phase, with capacity for a total of 574 spaces in the future. The lot will be served by Routes 22, 94 and 122.

- Express Route 22 provides direct rush hour service to downtown via Trim Road, the 174 and the Transitway.
- Rapid transit Route 94 provides frequent all-day service along Innes, then via Blair Road and the Transitway direct to downtown and Tunney's Pasture.
- Local route 122 provides all day service within the Orléans East community to Place d'Orléans for shopping and connections to other routes.

Taunting coach has NFL abuzz after jibes backfire

Josh McDaniels' trash talk is the talk of the league.

The Denver Broncos' brash — some would say cocky — coach exchanged taunts with a group of San Diego Chargers linebackers during warmups Sunday, at one point telling them, "We own you!"

Then he watched those very players lead the Chargers' 32-3 beatdown that knocked Denver out of first place in the AFC West.

His words reverberated across the NFL, with fellow coaches saying they had never heard of this happening before and at least one star player suggesting they should be allowed to fight back with fists and not just their mouths when taunted by an opposing coach.

Josh McDaniels

According to players who were either involved in the heated exchange or who witnessed it, the main target of the 33-year-old McDaniels' taunting was outside linebacker Shaun Phillips, whose sack and strip of Chris Simms on his first dropback set the early tone for San Diego's statement victory.

"As a coach, I hope he has that mindset, but to say you own us? You beat us one time," said Phillips, who is five years younger than McDaniels. "How much has he really done in this league? He had a team 6-0 and now he's looking up at us in second place."

Pittsburgh Steelers safety Ryan Clark suggested players should be allowed to take a swing when coaches taunt players from the other team.

"Honestly, my thought on that is, I would like to petition Mr. (Roger) Goodell and say, if a coach can talk to me like that, I should be able to fight him," Clark said.

"I don't know where he's from, but where I'm from, when somebody talks to you like that, they've got a problem with you. And we should be able to fight."

There's a proverb that reads: To know the road ahead, ask those coming back.

But what if the few that are travelling said passageway are only thieves and cannibals? That is the primarily the predicament that a pair of post-apocalypse survivors face in The Road.

For those uneducated in Cormac McCarthy's Pulitzer Prize-winning novel-turned-movie, The Road is a kind of a zombie movie without the zombies: A man (Oscar-nominee Viggo Mortensen) wanders across America with his young son (Kodi Smit-McPhee) in search of food, shelter and a trace of hope in an otherwise bleak, desolate world.

As the pair travel by foot across a deserted interstate highway heading the unknown west for wishful repose, they discover faith only in each other while stumbling across occasional survivors that display the precarious virtue of humanity.

Suffice it to say that Earth is now a destroyed wasteland — twisted metal litters the streets, forests have fallen and the sky is painted an oppressive smoky grey. For this reason, hiring director John Hillcoat (The Proposition) was a clever choice. When it comes to setting tone, Hillcoat is the Nick Drake of cinematography.

But while he defiantly captures the dystopian look and feel, the Australian auteur still struggles with transposing the acclaimed novel into its cinematic counterpart.

While Mortensen is captivating even with a sparse amount of dialogue and action, the rambling structure of the film will lack the pacing needed to deliver enough thrills for most fidgety filmgoers.

Drive with caution, The Road ahead is a heavy ride.

ADAM NAYMAN

An Audience Award winner at this year's Toronto International Film Festival, Precious rolls back into town with the hype machine at full blast. At this point, a Best Picture nomination looks like a fait accompli.

Which doesn't mean that the film, a fact-based account of Job-like misery as experienced by a teenage girl in late 80s Harlem, is a worthy piece of work.

Precious comes advertised with adjectives like "harrowing," and it is, but the discomfort mostly stems from director Lee Daniels' willingness — and even eagerness — to revel in grotesque urban-nightmare imagery.

Over the course of the film, 16-year old Precious (Gabby Sidibe), who has already born two children by her own father, is subjected to an unending stream of verbal and physical abuse, most of it stemming from her ornery, shut-in mother (Mo'Nique).

After enrolling in a special education class presided over by a pretty, supportive young teacher (Paula Patton), Precious feels her first stirrings of hope — which is the film's cue to cut her back down with extreme prejudice.

The film's defenders claim that Daniels is merely displaying fidelity to his source material, but there's a line between empathy and exploitation, and Precious trips all over it.

Daniels' direction is pure sucker-punch cinema, a one-two combination of shock tactics and sanctimonious uplift.

The fantasy set-piece where Precious is surrounded by archival-footage avatars of African-American achievers would be insulting if it wasn't so ludicrous.

The September Issue reveals the world of legendary Vogue editor Anna Wintour.

Substance over style in mag doc

The September Issue

Director: RJ Cutler
Classification: STC
Rating: ⊕⊕⊕½

ADAM NAYMAN
for Metro Canada

In 1992, RJ Cutler produced an acclaimed documentary about Bill Clinton's presidential campaign called The War Room.

That title would have been equally applicable to the director's new documentary, The September Issue, which details the military precision behind the creation of the western world's most influential fashion tome.

That would be Vogue magazine, and the film opens with its editor — the legendary Anna Wintour — rallying the troops with the news that the September 2007 issue will be the biggest in the magazine's history.

The film's hook is Cutler's unprecedented access to a process — and an editor — typically unveiled via gossipy industry tell-alls: The great surprise of The September Issue is its strenuous avoidance of either callow, aren't-these-folks-silly critique or EPK-style brand-flogging (for an example of the latter, see the dreadful profile doc Valentino).

By taking the task at hand as seriously as his subjects, Cutler illuminates the artistry and professionalism behind images too easily — and conveniently — dismissed as the image-culture equivalent of empty calories.

That's not to say that there isn't interpersonal drama: the film's through-line is a battle of will between Wintour and her longtime friend and collaborator Grace Coddington, whose role as Vogue's creative director gives her more wiggle room than most when it comes to crossing the boss.

(The disagreement stems from Wintour's disparaging assessment of one of Coddington's much-fussed over layouts).

It's an inherently catty dynamic, but where another director might have played it up, Cutler allows both women their dignity, and in doing so leaves the audience's intact as well.

Bad behaviour

Director Herzog lets Cage rip in new film

CHRIS ALEXANDER
for Metro Canada

Nicholas Cage stars in Bad Lieutenant: Port of Call New Orleans.

In 1972 he took us down river into the heart of darkness in Aguirre The Wrath of God; in 1982's Fitzcaraldo, he hauled a massive steamboat over a mountain and in 2006's Rescue Dawn, he turned Christian Bale into an insect eating P.O.W.

Now, celebrated German art house director Werner Herzog resurrects actor Nicolas Cage's long lost edge in his berserkly entertaining re-imagining of Abel Ferrara's notorious 1992 portrait of police corruption and drug fuelled madness, Bad Lieutenant. Herzog's Bad Lieutenant: Port of Call New Orleans — opening next week — sees Hollywood heavy hitter Cage starring as a neurotic cop whose various addictions are slowly getting the better of him.

As he gets deeper entwined in a confounding murder investigation, he rides off the rails, veering into chemically tweaked eccentricity with near operatic aplomb.

"Nicolas's performance is often like jazz," says the 67-year-old Herzog, whose celebrated documentaries, like 2005's Grizzly Man, are as revered as his features.

If any filmmaker alive understands how to essay bad behaviour on screen, it's Werner Herzog. Fans of Herzog's work are aware of his iconic and volatile working relationship with the late method actor Klaus Kinski, one of the most bizarre and fascinating of director/muse pairings in film history. It was that legacy that first attracted Cage to the role.

"Werner has a high tolerance for intensity," Cage says. "He gave me the freedom to experiment with my performance but also find the dark humour in the outrageousness of the characters behavior."

Part of Bad Lieutenant's power also lies in the thick, sweaty atmosphere Herzog wrings out of the battered New Orleans locales. But surprisingly, it was Cage who suggested they move the action essayed in William Finkelstein's screenplay to the Louisiana city which, to further the influence on Cage's persona, is also the birthplace of jazz itself.

"I'm pretty connected to New Orleans," Cage admits.

Amreeka shows human touch

STEVE GOW

"I felt the need to make a movie that stripped Palestinians of the politics and saw them as human beings."
Cherien Dabis

FEATURE Cherien Dabis grew up caught between two worlds. Brought up in a rugged, rural Ohio town, the critically-acclaimed Palestinian filmmaker always struggled to find her identity.

"I think that my identity crisis is part of what drove me to become a filmmaker," said Dabis during a recent interview in Toronto. "I wasn't American enough for the Americans and I wasn't Arab enough for the Arabs – so that left me feeling as an outsider which gave me an interesting perspective."

That unique viewpoint has also furnished the fiction for her first award-winning feature film, Amreeka. Set in rural Illinois, the drama chronicles Muna, an earnest immigrant mother and her son struggling to survive in the landscape of America. For Dabis, it was especially important to play down politics in lieu of a more human story.

"It's something I felt the need to escape," explained Dabis. "Growing up, the first question when people found out I was Palestinian was 'what do you think of what's going on over there?'. It still happens so I think that was, in part, the reason I felt the need to make a movie that stripped Palestinians of the politics and saw them as humans beings — through this humanist perspective."

Brothers in harm

Director makes bold casting choices

PHIL BROWN
for Metro Canada

Movie feature

Director Jim Sheridan burst onto the scene with the Oscar-winning My Left Foot in 1989 and since then has produced an eclectic body of work including In The Name Of The Father, the autobiographical In America, and the 50 Cent epic Get Rich Or Die Trying.

His latest movie is Brothers, a remake of the 2004 Danish film of the same name about a family torn apart by war and post-traumatic stress disorder.

For Sheridan it was his first remake and as such a project that he walked into somewhat trepidatiously.

"I wasn't consciously trying to make my movie different," Sheridan told Metro. "I was only trying to answer questions in the original movie that were interesting to me."

Jim Sheridan's version of the film is — typical of his work — more family-oriented, focusing on how surviving a painful and spiritually challenging POW experience could change a soldier to the extent that his family can barely recognize him when he returns home.

In the film, that soldier is played by Spider-Man himself, Tobey Maguire in a creative casting choice that works simply because audiences would never anticipate that Maguire would go through such brutal psychological changes.

It was a casting decision made specifically by Sheridan to play with audience expectations.

"That's why we cast Tobey, so that no one would expect it," revealed Sheridan.

That casting approach was also applied to the role of Maguire's ex-con brother who is surprisingly played by the typically gentle Jake Gyllenhaal. "Jake is often thought of as the lovable centre-of-attention character," said Sheridan.

"I found it interesting to cast him as the edgy ex-con just to play with that image. Some people don't want to buy these actors in different roles like this, but I always find it interesting. I think they're both very honest performers."

This creative use of actors is typical of Sheridan, who is a filmmaker not particularly interested in visual spectacle, but in creating actor-focused films that strive for interesting spins on reality rather than fantasy.

"I try to create a humanist set where the actors are important and the people are important," revealed the director.

"Rather than creating a universe where you're visually oriented, I'm more interested in capturing an emotional universe, which is invisible. I look for moments that are only going to appear once and are fleeting. I think that visuals can get in the way of that. So I just try to keep things simple."

It's a directorial approach that has served Jim Sheridan well throughout his career and can be felt in every scene of the subtly moving Brothers.

Expect to see the title pop up quite in the media as awards season rolls around.

Brothers opens in theatres next Friday

"Jake (Gyllenhaal) is often thought of as the lovable centre-of-attention character I found it interesting to cast him as the edgy ex-con just to play with that image."

Ninja films gold mine of great action

InFocus

Richard Crouse

metronews.ca/infocus

There's much more to the ninja film genre than Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles, columnist Richard Crouse says.

If the name Shô Kosugi doesn't conjure up images of whirling nunchucks or twirling throwing stars then your knowledge of ninja films probably doesn't extend much further than Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles.

Kosugi is the godfather of the modern ninja film, a Japanese martial artist who, during the 1980s, used his mad ninjitsu skills to battle every movie bad guy from evil terrorists to Mafia thugs and even possessed break dancers. When the "invisible warrior" craze petered out in the early '90s Kosugi became a star on Japanese TV and created a workout regimen called Ninjaerobics. This week, however, he returns to the big screen in Ninja Assassin, playing Ozunu, head of a dangerous cult that turns orphans into blood thirsty killing machines.

The movie that kicked off ninja mania was 1981's Enter the Ninja, a wild b-movie that features 19 minutes of hardcore ninja action in the first 20 minutes.

Kosugi is an evil ninja hired to take down a virtuous "white ninja" (Franco Nero, who didn't do any of his own fight scenes), who is protecting a friend's Philippine plantation.

The body count is high — 36 people get ninjaed, including one security guard who falls victim to the dreaded "mosquito spikes" — and even though the acting is terrible and the jokes a little flat it has, nonetheless, been described by one ninja fan as "fantastic crap."

Probably the most outlandish of the original '80s wave of ninja flicks is Ninja III: The Domination, which features a lead character described as completely normal, aside from her "exceptional extrasensory perception and preoccupation with Japanese culture."

In this one, an evil ninja attempts to avenge his death from beyond the grave, by possessing an innocent woman's body. Ninja III is packed with cool stunts — a throwing star is tossed by some very limber ninja toes — and we learn that a ninja can transfer his soul through his sword to another person.

Besides outrageous ninja action, the only thing these movies have in common is stiff acting, but acting isn't why you buy a ticket to see a movie called Rage of Honor.

If you want good acting look up Phillip Seymour Hoffman, but if you want to see a ninja take on a pick-up truck and win or slice a bad guy in half (sending his legs to and his torso fro), then Shô Kosugi is your man.

"Acting isn't why you buy a ticket to see a movie called Rage of Honor."

Richard Crouse's Movie Show can be seen every Sunday at 6:30 p.m. on the E! Channel; mrchaos33@hotmail.com.

Centre of the storm

Controversy surrounds release of Adam Lambert's new album

Singer Adam Lambert has become one of the most controversial artists in the music business.

BRYAN BORZYKOWSKI
for Metro Canada

Before last Sunday, Adam Lambert was famous for two things: Being the first openly gay American Idol contestant and losing the Idol title he clearly should have won.

But after an over-the-top American Music Awards performance — he kissed his male keyboardist and participated in a simulated sex act — he's suddenly become the most controversial artist in the music biz.

"I figured it would have got some reaction," says Lambert on the phone from New York. "But I didn't think it would get to this level."

While the spiky-haired singer didn't want to offend the AMA's television audience, and he says it wasn't pre-meditated, he does admit that he was "going with the motions, in the spirit of rock 'n' roll and I was having a good time."

His performance got him booted from a Good Morning America appearance, and he may have alienated some of his more wholesome fans, but if Lambert really was channeling the spirit of rock''n' roll, he knows that controversy can do wonders for album sales.

"I figured it would have got some reaction. But I didn't think it would get to this level."
Adam Lambert

His new disc, For Your Entertainment, was released earlier this week, so it's too early to tell if his stunt has paid off at the cash register (is there any doubt?), but it may not have needed the extra boost. The disc is easily the most eclectic post-Idol record ever released. It pays homage to everyone from Queen and David Bowie to Lady Gaga, who co-wrote some tracks on the album.

The title tune, now known as that song from the AMAs, is full of sexual innuendo — "Can you handle what I'm 'bout to do? Cause it's about to get rough for you," he sings — but Lambert wants people to know that it's the only hedonistic tune on the disc.

"That's the one song on the album dealing with a sex thing," says the articulate artist, almost defensively. "That's the one thing I'm concerned about. I don't want people to assume that's the kind of artist I'm going to be."

Problem is, it's not the only sex-themed song. In the Gaga-penned Fever he sings about a threesome, and other songs can be taken a number of different ways. But really, who cares? Lambert's done something that takes most other American Idol contestants at least two or three albums to do — he's developed his own identity.

It may be a polarizing one, but he admits, that's fine with him. "People love me or hate me and that's the way it will be for the rest of my career," he says.

That love-hate relationship is made a bit more complex, however, because he is gay. He knows a lot of Americans are still uncomfortable with the idea. "People say 'we're ready for it'," he explains, "but when it (actually happens) they're not ready."

Of course, that's not going to stop him from playing, and performing, the way he wants to. "If anything can be said about my performance on American Idol is that it was different from week to week and I plan on conducting my career in the same way," he says. "I have a lot more tricks up my sleeve."

Be afraid of secret copyright deal

SoundCheck

Alan Cross

metronews.ca/soundcheck

What you're about to read is not something cooked up by some whacko group of conspiracy theorists.

Agents from countries around the world — the U.S., the U.K., the EU, Switzerland, Japan, Australia, New Zealand, South Korea, Singapore, Mexico, Morocco and, yes, Canada — are secretly drafting the Anti-Counterfeiting Trade Agreement.

Despite the cone of silence demanded by the Obama administration on "national security" reasons, some details on ACTA have leaked out.

- ISPs will be turned into copyright cops and be required by law to filter out anything they think might be pirated material. This will mean monitoring sites that offer user-created material. Given the enormity and complexity of that requirement, consider the chill that will cast over music sites, even perfectly legal ones. Could many of them be forced out of business? What about bands who give away music?
- If you're accused three times (just accused, not convicted) by your ISP of using their pipes for illegally downloading copyrighted material like music, your household will be banned from the Internet for a year and forced to pay a fine. Little Susie thrice caught with her hand in the BitTorrent jar? The whole family will suffer.
- Want to make a back-up copy of that DVD you bought by bypassing its copy-protection scheme? All DRM cracking — even for legal reasons — will be illegal.
- Want to use identity-blocking software to maintain online anonymity? Not anymore you won't.
- But I saved the best for last. Customs officers of signatory countries will have the right to force you to prove that all the data on your iPod or laptop was acquired legally. If Charlie the border guard suspects that even one of the music files on your Nano was obtained illegally, welcome to the world of search and seizure without the benefit of a lawyer. And given that Canada is on America's "priority watch list" because they think we're pirates on the magnitude of China, Russia and Indonesia, I'm nervous.

"If Charlie the border guard suspects that even one of the music files on your Nano was obtained illegally, welcome to the world of search and seizure without the benefit of a lawyer."

Who's behind this? We're not sure. Canadian record labels were "consulted" but haven't been involved in the final negotiations.

Bottom line is that ACTA could be in place by 2010 and you won't be able to do a damn thing about it. Federal trade agreements don't require parliamentary approval. One signature from the appropriate government representative and it's the law.

Be afraid. Very afraid.

Let Us Whiten Your Teeth Now For a Dazzling Holiday Smile!

Give yourself a white Christmas this year with professional tooth whitening from Dr. David Halpin's beautiful, new dental office at Smiles On Sparks... Now's the perfect time to whiten your teeth so you can enjoy a dazzling holiday smile.

An attractive smile is a valuable asset and you should always be happy and confident with yours, however If the appearance of your teeth has made smiling uncomfortable for you, professional tooth whitening can give you the whiter, brighter smile you've always wanted... and more importantly, the desire to smile!

The natural brilliance of your teeth can be discoloured by a number of different causes including tobacco use, certain foods and beverages such as coffee, tea, colas and berries or chocolate, as well as by deposits of calculus or tartar. Moreover, internal discolouration of the teeth may result from aging, injury, excessive fluoride and other causes.

A visit to our office is a great place to start. Stained teeth can be quickly and easily brightened in about an hour with a professional tooth whitening system administered by our dentists. We can determine if your teeth will be receptive to the 1-hour whitening process, or alternatively you may whiten your teeth gradually at home with one of our professional whitening systems. If you choose this option, we will fabricate a custom-fitted delivery system to position our whitening gel (which you'll use at home) against the surfaces of your teeth.

The degree of desired color change as well as the depth of the stains or darkness will determine the length of treatment, however usually two weeks of twice-daily (at home) whitening treatment will return your teeth to their original brilliance.

Remember too that you should whiten your teeth before having any visible white fillings, porcelain veneers or crowns replaced because the whitening process will not brighten these restorations. You should also consider waiting at least two weeks following your whitening treatments to insure that the shade of your teeth has stabilized, before undertaking any additional aesthetic dentistry.

Caring for your new, whiter, brighter smile is easy too. Twice-daily brushing, daily flossing and regular professional cleanings, along with occasional touch-up treatments can keep your teeth looking their best so that you can enjoy total confidence in exercising your smile over the holidays and for many months to come.

Yours for better dental health,

Dr. David J. Halpin

Kid Cudi joins Monster Ball

Newcomer replaces Kanye West on Lady Gaga tour

JASON RICHARDS
for Metro Canada

Kid Cudi has some big, stylish shoes to fill.

The hip-hop newcomer is replacing Kanye West as Lady Gaga's tourmate on her 41-city Monster Ball tour, which includes a stop at the Air Canada Centre Saturday.

Despite being signed to Kanye's vanity record label GOOD Music, Cudi says he's not really aware of the circumstances surrounding West's abrupt departure in September from Gaga's show, which was originally a co-headlining event called Fame Kills.

"I don't have any knowledge of that at all," he tells Metro in a phone interview. "They just asked me, and I said 'yeah.'"

Thanks to the last-minute change, Kid Cudi had to scramble to make sure his part of the show was up to Gaga's flamboyant standards.

"We're really really trying to do what we can," the rapper says during his first week of rehearsals. "Because I know that Gaga's set is going to be ridiculous. It's gonna be way better than mine, so what I'm just trying to do is come up with creative ways to just do my thing, too."

But as for exactly how he'll go about doing his thing, well, you'll just have to wait and see.

"I can't really reveal too much," he says. "But I can say that it will be cinematic in nature."

In that case, his set will have something in common with his debut album, Man on the Moon: The End of Day. One of the most original hip-hop full-lengths of the year, the album dramatically casts Cudi in the real-life story of a lonely yet imaginative rap upstart.

With its brooding, melancholy overtone and forlorn subject matter, since its release in September, the album has inspired a new term among critics: "emo-rap."

Cudi — who's working on a free mixtape and a compilation set to come out early next year — welcomes the coinage, saying that newfangled ways of describing his music was inevitable.

"You gotta remember, my goal in making the record was to confuse those people," he says. "I wanted people to love it, but to not know what to call it, you know what I mean?"

So You Think You Can Dance Canada winner Nico Archembault embodies famed dancer Rudolf Nureyev in the new Bravo! biopic.

Canadian dancer brings sex appeal, talent to Nureyev role

JOHN KEILLOR
for Metro Canada

Filmmaker Moze Mossanen brings international intrigue and artistic genius together in his new Bravo! production Nureyev, about the great Russian dancer who famously, dangerously defected in a Paris airport during the Cold War, and then revolutionized ballet in the West while evading Soviet recapture.

Rudolf Nureyev's wild elfin beauty, his genius and his limitless technique present a self-evident casting nightmare, but lithe Nico Archembault, winner of 2008's So You Think You Can Dance competition, has the necessary talent and the charismatic handsomeness. Still, playing Nureyev is a daunting task.

"(Nureyev) was physically one of the greatest dancers who ever lived."
Nico Archembault

"He remade the male dancer's role," says Archembault by phone. "Before Nureyev, men on stage were mostly props that women danced around. Nureyev changed everything. He was physically one of the greatest dancers who ever lived, and he was also mysterious yet flamboyant."

Nureyev airs on Bravo! on Tuesday night

Archembault is an all-round dancer, a master of many styles, but moving into the purely ballet realm is tough. Professionals can spend a decade or more getting some of those moves right. Ballet makes some unique demands on the body that modern and jazz styles don't require.

Luckily, Archembault, who recently danced in a Janet Jackson video, has a complete background to build upon for the challenge of performing as Nureyev, including classical ballet.

"Ballet has been part of my routine all my life," he says, "it's always been part of my warm up and my work out. And since I got the role, I've been concentrating on ballet, with lots of private lessons."

Nureyev the man also represents more than skills and brilliance – as a defector from the U.S.S.R, which treasured its dancers, Nureyev has always been synonymous with defiant individuality.

"He escaped a brutal regime," Archembault says appreciably, "when there was huge pressure for Russian artists to conform to the state. But if you suppress all individuality then nothing new is ever created. He (Nureyev) resonates with me a lot. You have to be free to be challenged, as an individual."

Polanski's bail remains intact

Roman Polanski will be moved from jail to house arrest at his Alpine chalet as soon as he posts $4.5 million bail and meets other conditions set by a Swiss court, the Justice Ministry said Thursday.

The ministry said it would not appeal a decision by the Swiss Criminal Court to release the 76-year-old director, adding that he can leave jail after his pays bail, surrenders his identity documents and has an electronic monitoring system installed and tested.

The announcement means Polanski will be able to continue his fight against extradition to the United States in a 1977 sex case from the comfort of his $1.6 million chalet in the exclusive winter resort of Gstaad. Authorities in Los Angeles want him sentenced for having sex with a 13-year-old girl.

Ministry spokesman Folco Galli said the release would be handled quietly.

"We don't want to show him off like an exotic animal," he told The Associated Press.

Polanski was accused of raping the girl after plying her with champagne and a Quaalude pill during a modeling shoot in 1977. He was initially indicted on six felony counts, including rape by use of drugs, child molesting and sodomy, but he pleaded guilty to the lesser charge of unlawful sexual intercourse.

In exchange, the judge agreed to drop the remaining charges and sentence him to prison for a 90-day psychiatric evaluation.

Metro's 7th Heaven: Metro taps what's hot right now

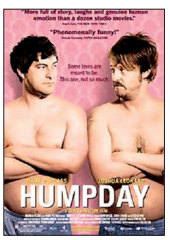
1 Victoria's Secret Fashion Show

TV Santa's granted your wish — a little early this year. On Dec. 1, CBS will broadcast a holiday-themed pageant from the house of hot lingerie. Heidi Klum hosts and the Black Eyed Peas perform. Models? Marisa Miller, Alessandra Ambrosio, Doutzen Kroes and Miranda Kerr, to name a few. Check local listings for air times.

2 Fantastic Mr. Fox

FILM Like a smack in the face of all the CGI-driven drivel comes this old-school, stop-motion animation from one of the quirkiest directors working in Hollywood. Wes Anderson updates the beloved Roald Dahl story with a little help from star voiceovers — including George Clooney, Meryl Streep and Bill Murray.

3 Humpday

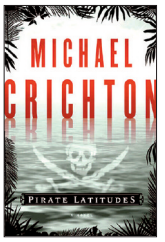


DVD Straight guy meets straight guy friend after 10 years, go to a party, get drunk and decide to make arty gay porn film starring themselves. What sounds like a bromance to end all bromances is actually just a premise for a journey through male egotism. It helps that there are plenty of laughs on the way. Starring Mark Duplass and Joshua Leonard.

4 I Dreamed a Dream: Susan Boyle

ALBUM If her dream was releasing the year's biggest-selling album of the year, it may just come true. The Britain's Got Talent phenomenon has been topping pre-sales lists for weeks and is already breaking records across the pond. As for the album itself, there are some unusual choices for cover songs, such as the Rolling Stones classic Wild Horses.

5 Pirate Latitudes: Michael Crichton



BOOK Discovered by an assistant on the late author's computer, Latitudes is the writer's first posthumous novel. But this is no scientific thriller on the lines of Jurassic Park. As the title suggests, the story revolves around piracy in Jamaica in the 17th century. He should have just called it Pirates of the Caribbean IV.

6 Jack & Coke: Artie Lange

COMEDY Nothing's sacred for funnyman Lange. Not even the late great Heath Ledger. The filth flies in this live stand-up album from The Howard Stern Show regular, as everyone from Tony Romo to Mike Tyson turn toast on Lange's grilling machine. Really, the punch lines will leave you hungry for more.

Lady Gaga tackles the Fame monster

SANAA BEN SALEM
Metro World News

Love her or hate her, no one can remain insensitive to the charm of Lady Gaga. Wednesday, the American songstress released The Fame Monster, her collectors album. Metro World News caught up with 2009's biggest pop phenomenon.

Q You are releasing a album called The Fame Monster, which is a reedition of you album the Fame, why should people buy it?

A For the eight new tracks. The Fame Monster is like a work of art — I wanted to create something that went above and beyond music. I also attached a lot of importance to the photos on the album cover.

Q The pictures were taken by Frenchman Hedi Slimane. How do you manage to have such an individual sense of style yet create music that is loved and listen to be everyone?

A Anyone can appreciate my music but I only work with certain people. For example, it is the director of I Am Legend Francis Lawrence which filmed the video for Bad Romance and I am about to work with British photographer Nick Knight.

Q You are a considered a global icon, is that something you find hard to deal with?

A Not at all. I have always known what I was getting myself into and the consequences my actions would have.

The Fame Monster is out in stores now

Blatz feeling at home

TELEVISION Not that long ago, Kelly Blatz worked at a Starbucks in Burbank, Calif., fetching coffee for executives who worked at the neighbourhood TV and film studios. As he puts it, "I used to serve all the people I work for now."

Blatz just wrapped production on a second season of the Disney XD series Aaron Stone (Family Channel). He was in Toronto earlier this week to promote his latest project, the sci-fi 'tween drama Skyrunners (premiering Friday, Nov. 27 on Family).

In the TV movie, Blatz plays high school senior Nick Burns, who, together with his younger brother Tyler (Joey Pollari), discovers a UFO has landed in their town. The boys seize the saucer as their own personal spacecraft, and soon, "weird stuff starts happening to Tyler," says Blatz.

Not surprising, given that Tyler has been abducted by aliens. Nick has to rescue his brother, distract a persistent government agent and appease an uptight girlfriend — all before he graduates.

Kelly Blatz

The TV movie — the first for the U.S. cable channel Disney XD — has an odd history. It all started when Blatz won the lead role of video game ace and secret superhero Aaron Stone by accidentally pulling a fire alarm at his audition. Blatz walked in and sheepishly admitted to the panel of producers, casting agents and network executives that he was the dummy responsible for the racket. The panel smiled, looked at each other and knew they'd found their klutzy super hero.

Most young Canadian actors dream of one day making it in Hollywood. Blatz — born and raised in Burbank, where he could walk to three or four major Hollywood studios — boarded a plane and flew to Toronto to shoot Aaron Stone.

When the pilot episode was done, Disney execs told their likable young star that they wanted him for Skyrunner.

"There was this amazing script, all about alien invasions, very Spielberg-esque," he says. He went straight into production on Skyrunner, also shot in Toronto. THE CANADIAN PRESS

CBS 'double standard' over Adam Lambert smooch angers GLAAD

MEDIA 'CIRCUS' Madonna and Britney yes, Adam Lambert and male keyboardist no?

On Wednesday's Early Show appearance by Lambert, producers blurred the singer's open-mouth kiss with a male keyboardist during his controversial performance at Sunday's AMAs. Seconds later, an undistorted clip of Madonna smooching Britney Spears at the 2003 MTV VMAs ran.

What gives? A CBS rep explains: "We gave this some real thought. The Madonna image is very familiar and has appeared countless times including many times on morning television. The Adam Lambert image is a subject of great current controversy, has not been nearly as widely disseminated, and for all we know, may still lead to legal consequences."

Jarrett Barrios, President of GLAAD, called the edits "an unfortunate double standard that is applied to openly gay performers."

Miley admits Efron crush in order to relate to teen fans

SORRY, KEEP TRYING Miley Cyrus is trying to relate to her teenage fans despite her successful career, and she's found just the thing. "There are not many things about me that are like a normal teenage girl. But the one normal teenage girl thing is that I think Zac Efron is the hottest person in the world," the Hannah Montana star said in a interview with XM Satellite Radio. "I really, really like him. And it's weird. It's weird because he's my friend."

Rihanna's advice on dealing with the rumour mill

UMBRELLA-HA-HA-HA Rihanna admits that all the speculation from earlier in her career that she was having an affair with Jay-Z had a deep effect on her, and spills the beans on how she was able to overcome reading nasty rumours about herself in the tabloids.

"It was like, 'Of course she had to give Jay-Z oral sex to get that deal.

"That rumour was everywhere in Barbados and it was so disgusting," the singer says, according to Yahoo! News.

But advice from Jay-Z himself was what helped her move past all the press.

"One day, he called and he was like, 'Yo, you can't buy into these rumours. You can't let people move you with anything they say,'" she remembers. "The rumours got very funny to me after that."

Kellan's playground kiss-and-tell

IT'S OK IF THIS STORY MAKES YOU FEEL A BIT CREEPY Twilight hunk Kellan Lutz has always been a hit with the ladies, ever since his very first kiss at the tender age of seven, femalefirst.co.uk reports.

The 24-year-old actor, a former model, confesses he locked lips with a girl for the first time during a playground game of truth or dare — and his technique was a winner from the start. He tells People.com, "I was playing truth or dare when I had my first kiss. I was probably seven. I learned to hold the girl and I won as best kisser."

Metro Recipe of the Day

Hasty Haddock with Tomato and Red Onion Salsa

INGREDIENTS:

1 red onion, halved and thinly sliced
4 tomatoes, halved and cores removed
1/4 tsp (1 ml) crushed chili flakes
1 tbsp (15 ml) chopped candied ginger
1 tsp (5 ml) sugar
1 tbsp (15 ml) tomato paste
1 tbsp (15 ml) red wine vinegar
3 tbsp (45 ml) olive oil
4 haddock fillets

METHOD:

1. Separate onion slices into shreds and put into bowl. Thinly slice tomatoes and add to bowl. Sprinkle in chili flakes, ginger and sugar, then stir in tomato paste and vinegar with seasoning to taste. Stir in 2 tbsp (25 ml) of olive oil and set aside.
2. Preheat broiler to high. Lightly oil broiler pan, then add haddock portions, skin side up, and brush with a little of remaining oil. Cook 3 minutes. Turn fish, brush with remaining oil and cook 3 minutes or until cooked through.
3. Divide salsa among four plates and lay haddock portions on top. Garnish with mustard and cress and serve immediately. aliquip ex ea commodo consequat.

Horoscopes by Sally Brompton sallybrompton.com

For Sally's expanded daily and weekend horoscopes, visit metronews.ca

ARIES ♈
MARCH 21-APRIL 20
Sort out your money situation today. You don't have to be too ruthless about it but you do have to make serious changes.

TAURUS ♉
APRIL 21-MAY 21
What occurs today will take you by surprise and maybe even test your faith in someone you thought you could trust. Stand back from the situation.

GEMINI ♊
MAY 22-JUNE 21
Do you go out and have fun or stay in and get some work done today? If you are smart you will sacrifice short-term enjoyment for long-term fun.

CANCER ♋
JUNE 22-JULY 22
You have thought long and hard about what you want to do with your life – now you must make a decision and, having made it, stick to it.

LEO ♌
JULY 23-AUG 23
Something will happen today that shocks you. In return you will do something that shocks other people because it is completely out of character.

VIRGO ♍
AUG 24-SEPT 22
Your schedule and your working routine is likely to be disrupted today and, to say the least, you won't be happy about it. Be flexible.

LIBRA ♎
SEPT 23-OCT 23
Yes you can, if you wish, make a drama out of a crisis, but what good would it do you? Your best response is no response at all

SCORPIO ♏
OCT 24-NOV 22
Your opinions about certain issues are likely to be somewhat confused. Don't worry: come the weekend you'll know all the answers again.

SAGITTARIUS ♐
NOV 23-DEC 21
In your rush to get things done today there is a danger that you could be a bit rough in the way you deal with other people. Don't be so harsh.

CAPRICORN ♑
DEC 22-JAN 20
Cosmic activity in the area of your chart that governs property, investments and joint finances may incline you to take risks. Be cautious.

AQUARIUS ♒
JAN 21-FEB 18
Cosmic activity in one of the more abrasive areas of your chart urges you to be careful when dealing with people in positions of power.

PISCES ♓
FEB 19-MARCH 20
You don't have the time to play games and anyone who avoids giving you a straight answer deserves to will feel the rough edge of your tongue.

SUSAN FINDLAY/THE CANADIAN PRESS

SUSAN FINDLAY/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Turkey Chili, left, will warm you on those cold days while Apple-Pear Upside Down Cake, right, is a perfect finish to any meal.

Turkey Chili

INGREDIENTS:

1 each onion, carrot and celery stalk, chopped
500 ml (2 cups) each cored, chopped apples and diced butternut squash
4 cloves garlic, finely chopped
500 g (1 lb) ground turkey, cooked
30 ml (2 tbsp) chili powder
15 ml (1 tbsp) ground cumin
5 ml (1 tsp) dried oregano
1 ml (1/4 tsp) each salt and freshly ground pepper
1 can (284 ml/10 oz) undiluted chicken broth
1 can (400 ml/15 oz) light coconut milk
30 ml (2 tbsp) tomato paste
250 ml (1 cup) canned black beans, drained and rinsed
Coconut flakes and cilantro, for garnish

METHOD:

- Combine all ingredients (except garnishes) in slow cooker.
- Cook on high for 4 to 6 hours or on low for 8 to 10 hours.
- Serve with rice or mashed potatoes.
- You can Use 1 l (4 cups) diced cooked turkey or chicken in place of ground turkey. Open lid for last 45 minutes of cooking to thicken, if desired. Mash the squash with the back of a wooden spoon to thicken further.

MAKES 8 TO 10 SERVINGS

Apple-Pear Upside Down Cake

INSIDE INGREDIENTS:

50 ml (1/4 cup) butter
125 ml (1/2 cup) lightly packed brown sugar
45 ml (3 tbsp) chopped toasted pecans
2 fresh apples
1 firm but ripe pear

CAKE INGREDIENTS:

375 ml (1 1/2 cups) all-purpose flour
175 ml (3/4 cup) granulated sugar
5 ml (1 tsp) baking powder
2 ml (1/2 tsp) each baking soda, cinnamon and ground ginger
1 ml (1/4 tsp) salt
75 ml (1/3 cup) butter, softened
1 egg
175 ml (3/4 cup) buttermilk
5 ml (1 tsp) vanilla

METHOD:

- Grease bottom and sides of 2.5-l (9-inch) square cake pan.
- Add butter and melt in a 180 C (350 F) oven.
- Stir in brown sugar and spread evenly in pan; sprinkle with pecans.
- Peel, core and thinly slice apples and pear, slicing pear horizontally; toss together and arrange evenly over sugar mixture.
- Cake: In a bowl, combine flour, sugar, baking powder, baking soda, cinnamon, ginger and salt.
- Add butter, egg, buttermilk and vanilla.
- With electric mixer, beat at low speed until moistened; beat at medium speed for 1 minute, scraping side of bowl.
- Spoon over fruit and spread evenly.
- Bake in a 180 C (350 F) oven for about 45 minutes or until cake tester comes out clean.
- Let cool on rack for 10 minutes.
- Run knife around edge of cake and carefully invert onto plate, replacing any bits that may stick to pan. Serve warm.
